"He's so amazing!" I stood behind a tree as I watched Naruto train with Kakashi. Naruto was throwing a small fit when Kakashi recommended a break. "Oh Naruto..." I giggled watching him. He sighed as turned around in my direction. I gasped and quickly hid behind the tree completely. I was blushing. Naruto didn't have on a shirt and was so muscular. Not too much and not to little, he was perfect. I've been watching him for so long.

Naruto was getting ready to leave. While he was getting ready, I went ahead and left to go home. It was getting dark. The whole way there I thought of Naruto. I covered my face with my hands to hide my blush from everyone. "Naruto..." I mumbled to myself. Why hasn't he returned my feelings yet? Doesn't he know I love him?

"Hinata, where have you been?" Neji asked me as soon as I came into the house. "I-I... nowhere! I just... I.." I looked away and down, afraid he'd see the answer in my eyes. Neji always did somehow know everything that was wrong with me or was on my mind. "Hinata.." He said my name. I know he wants me to look at him so he could see what was wrong with me again." I had no choice. I slowly looked up at him. I'm pretty sure he could see my red face through my hands. Neji chuckled. "Hinata, did you meet someone?" His answer was close. It's always close if not right. I shook my head. He thought for a moment. "Are you inlove?" He raise an eyebrow. By the way Neji laughed slightly from my silence, I knew he knew. "Don't worry. Whoever it is, I;m sure they'll feel the same if you told them how you felt."

"Really?" I asked a little to eagerly.

Neji nodded before walking off and waving me to follow. "Let's go to bed now." I gave a small smile. "O-ok!"

I lied down in bed slowly falling asleep. "Stop it!" I woke up completely and sat up. That was Neji I heard. I quickly got up, a thump was heard when my feet hit the floor. "W-What was that?" I hurried out of my room and down the hall towards Neji's. I was about to barge in, but wasn't sure if I should. Instead, I knocked gentle on the door. "N-Neji? Are you alright? I heard you yell.." Their was silence for a moment, but then I heard a groan. When I touched the knob, I heard a loud crashing noise. I quickly turned the knob and pushed open the door, but it didn't completely open. Neji stood on the other side of the door. He stopped me from opening it all the way. All I could see was the irritated expression on his face. "What is it?" He asked me almost in a threatening tone. I was easily intimidated. "I-I heard you yell...and..and..I was..worried...I

ca-came to-" He closed the door while saying, "Go to bed Hinata." I stood there for a moment before leaving. "O...Okay.."

"Hinata wake up." I opened my eyes and sat up to the voice of my older cousin. "Good morning Neji." I smiled at him. He nodded. "You have training to do right? Your team needs you." I quickly jumped out of bed. "Your right! I have to change!" Neji turned around to leave. I noticed how oddly he was walking, as if he was in pain. "A-Are you alright Neji?" Neji kept walking away. He didn't say a word. "Neji's acting strange..."
